Repenning Fine Arts

Classes are now forming for adults and children, eight and older.

Oil painting, pastel, charcoal, watercolor and pencil are just some of the media used to explore many different techniques of representational art.

Most classes are two hours long, one class per week, and limited to about twelve students per class.

Each student, from beginner to advanced, receives individual attention, geared to his or her own needs.

Subject matter varies from still life, to landscape, to portraiture.

Students may continue to come as long as they feel they are learning.

A full line of art materials and framing are also available for students to purchase at discounted prices.
